

Are you graduating in May?

You still have time to Study Abroad!

Summer 2022 –Slovenia, Croatia & Bosnia-Herzegovina

Post-Grad Feedback

"I think having the opportunity to go on this abroad as a post-graduate student was fantastic because it would not have been possible for me at any other time while attending Principia. I think I was able to bring all of my experiences to the group to hopefully have a positive impact. The program was also great at helping me gain an even better perspective of other cultures and motivate me to learn a new language."

"As a post-grad, I think this was an amazing end cap to my undergraduate career – both because it was tons of fun, and because the learning style of this abroad allowed me to reflect on what I've learned at Prin and then apply much of that (whether academic, leadership skills, reflective skills, etc) to what we are doing and to the group."

"This program was personally very supportive and helpful for me as I prepare to be "on my own" in terms of having to now intentionally place metaphysics in my life, or give space, rather than having that space automatically created at Prin. This abroad helped me gain perspective through conversations with younger students who might be more reckless or casual in this decision and practice. It was fun to hear their thoughts and share some of my own advice and experiences, but it also helped me solidify my own decisions going forward."

Frequently Asked Post-Grad Questions

What does it mean to study abroad as a post-graduate student?

Seniors who graduate in May, having completed all academic requirements, are eligible to re-enroll as a student and participate in study abroad programs. You will have extended access to your Principia email and Canvas through the program.

When can I go on a study abroad program?

Within the academic year that you graduate – if you graduate in May 2023, you can do a summer program.

If you graduate in January 2023, you can still participate in summer 2023 programs. You would be required to participate in all required courses and program meetings for the study abroad program, as well as meet paperwork submission deadlines.

Will the study abroad program courses be included on my transcripts?

Yes, the program courses and grades will be listed on your transcripts. You will need to have completed all your major requirements prior to graduation, but these courses will be added to your overall Principia transcript and factored into your GPA. Post-grad students are expected to be fully engaged in the academic and group learning components of the program.

Will I receive financial aid for this program?

Your financial aid package that you have for the current academic year will extend to the summer program's tuition. For all break programs, financial aid extends to tuition. You are also eligible for the new Study Abroad Grant, which can help cover additional costs like room and board, flights, and the administrative fee. For more information, visit the Study Abroad website: Student Resources – Financial Aid.

Do I get to participate in the graduation ceremony?

Yes, you will participate in all graduation-related activities as you will have completed your Principia degree requirements. Summer programs leave very quickly after graduation, so you will need to plan ahead and be prepared to leave Principia and be out of the country for four to six weeks.
